THE SHOOTING of DAN MCGREW

The Poem by Robert W. Serviss, Reads:

A bunch of the boys were whooping it up in the Malamute saloon; The kid that handles the music-box was hitting a jag time tune; Back of the bar, in a solo game, sat Dangerous Dan McGrew, And watching his luck was his light-of-love, the lady that's known as Lou.

When out of the night, which was fifty below, and into the din and the glare, There stumbled a miner fresh from the creeks, dog-dirty and loaded for bear.

He looked like a man with a foot in the grave and scarcely the strength of a louse, Yet he tilted a poke of dust on the bar, and he called for drinks for the house.

There was none could place the stranger's face, though we searched ourselves for a clue; But we drank his health, and the last to drink was Dangerous Dan McGrew.

His eyes went rubbing round the room, and he seemed in a kind of daze, Till at last that old piano fell in the way of his wandering gaze.

The rag-time kid was having a drink, there was no one else on the stool.

So the stranger stumbles across the room, and flops down there like a fool.

In a buckskin shirt that was glazed with dirt, he sat, and I saw him sway;

Then he clutched the keys with his talon hands—my God! but that man could play.

Were you ever out in the Great Alone, when the moon was awful clear, And the ley mountains hemmed you in with a silence you must could hear?

With only the howl of a timber wolf, and you camped there in the cold.

A half-dead thing in a stark dead world, clean mad for the muck rolled gold.

While high overhead, green, yellow and red, the North lights swept in bars?

Then you've had a bunch what the music meant . . . hunger and night and the stars.

The music almost died away . . . then it burst like a pent-up flood; And it seemed to say, "Repay, repay," and my eyes were blind with blood.

The thought came back of an ancient wrong, and it stung like a frozen lash.

And the last-awoke to kill, to kill . . . then the music stopped with a crash.

And the stranger turned, and his eyes they burned in a most peculiar way;

In a buckskin shirt that was glazed with dirt he sat, and I saw him sway;

Then his lips went in a kind of grin, and he spoke, and his voice was calm.

And "Boys," says he, "you don't know me, and none of you care a damn;

But I want to state, and my words are straight, and I'll bet my poke they're true.

That one of you is a hound of hell . . . and that one is Dan McGrew."

Then I ducked my head, and the lights went out, and two guns blazed in the dark.

And a woman screamed and the lights went up, and two men lay stiff and stark.

Pitched on his head, and pumped full of lead, was Dangerous Dan McGrew.

While the men from the creeks lay clutched to the breast of the lady that's known as Lou.

Represents The New South On Suffrage Association Board

(Special to the Republican)
NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The National American Women Suffrage association announces that Mrs. Nellie Nugent Somerville of Mississippi has accepted the position of second vice president of the association and will be present at the next board meeting held at the headquarters in New York. Mrs. Somerville comes as a representative of the "new south" and brings to the membership of the official board a long and close familiarity with the suffrage situation in that part of the country.

"Suffrage sentiment in the south has never been so strong as at the present time," she says. "This year we are watching the big eastern campaigns, but next year we will look to the south for developments, and I prophesy that this part of the country will surprise the more conservative east when it comes to voting on enfranchising women. There is a fine new progressive spirit in the south today and votes for women is one of the liveliest questions in the minds of southern men."

Mrs. Somerville comes from an old Mississippi family and has long been prominent in the work of the Daughters of the Confederacy in her state and in the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. She was one of the pioneer suffragists of Mississippi and a charter member of the first suffrage organizations there. It was largely due to her efforts that the question of enfranchising women was first brought before the legislature of Mississippi and that the work today is going steadily forward.

Mrs. Nellie Nugent Somerville.

The official board of the National American Woman Suffrage association is now composed of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the association; Mrs. Stanley McCormick, New York; Miss Katherine Bennett Davis, New York; Mrs. Henry Wade Rogers, Connecticut; Mrs. Orten H. Clark, Michigan; Mrs. Richard Y. Fitzgerald, Boston; Mrs. William McNab Miller, Missouri; and Mrs. Medill McCormick, Chicago.

PHOENIX TO BE PACKING CENTER

Armour and Company to Install Complete Outfit for Preserving Meats, Insuring Fresh Supply for City at all Times

Phoenix will soon have the most complete and up-to-date meat handling plant in the southwest. L. J. Chapman, manager of the local branch of Armour and Company, having announced yesterday that extensive improvements were to be made immediately in the local establishment. The present building, although of high-class construction, has been used merely for transfer and storage purposes, but the business has now increased to such a volume that it has been decided to put in a complete cold storage plant, freezing and smoking equipment, and a big well will be driven, and engines and boilers installed. This new equipment will be of great benefit to the public as it makes possible the delivery in absolutely fresh condition of everything in smoked and bottled meats, in place of having these articles sent out by freight from the east, making them from ten days to two weeks old when delivered.

Plans for these extensive changes are now in the hands of local contractors and it is expected that work will be under way very soon with the expectation of a completed plant by October 15.

Not only does this action of Armour and Company help to put Phoenix on the map as a trade center but will bring in a number of expert workmen who with their families will be a nice little addition to the city. Armour and Company report their business in a fine condition at present with the past three months among the best in the history of the local branch.

JUST FEW WORDS FROM MRS. LEE

Says None Should Think Because Chorus Girls Appeared Without Stockings, They Were Otherwise Than Respectable

Not all of those who enjoy the entertainment provided by the James P. Lee Musical Comedy company are aware that Marie Barbier, who appears in character work and who is a Phoenix favorite, is in private life Mrs. Lee and that three of the "dancing dolls" in the chorus are her daughters. Small wonder then that Miss Barbier, or Mrs. Lee, should feel it her duty as a loving mother of a trio of girls and a watchful chaperon of the entire company, to express her views with relation to the recent order of Chief of Police George O. Brisbane that the "bare-legged beauties" of the chorus no longer appear with their legs unadorned other than as nature provided.

"Why, my daughters and the other girls in the chorus never thought for a minute that anybody could think it improper that they should appear on the stage without stockings. In all the big houses on the coast the chorus these days does not wear stockings and there never has been an attempt made to stop them. Our own company before closing its San Francisco engagement appeared exactly as it did here until the order came from the chief and necessitated the employment of stockings and tights."

"Our company is really a big family of home-loving girls and respectable young men. Mr. Lee and myself look after all as though they were our own. We would not permit anything that we considered low or vulgar. Of course we have plenty of stockings and tights and if the people of Phoenix want stockings and tights they are going to have them."

"I am going into the papers at this time somewhat against my own wishes, only for the reason that I don't want anybody to think because this order was issued that we are not respectable and just like the fathers and mothers and sons and daughters of the good people of this city. I hope this little statement will set at rest any suspicion that any of the members of the company are not ladies and gentlemen. None would be with the company as associates of my children if they were otherwise."

MOOSE PLAN HOLDING MID-SUMMER SOCIAL

Pleasing Entertainment is Arranged For Next Thursday Evening

In spite of the fact that the warm weather is said to keep the general public from attending social functions, the entertainment committee of Phoenix Lodge No. 708, Loyal Order of Moose, has arranged a social affair for next Thursday evening that is bound to attract an attendance that will tax the capacity of Moose Home. With the spacious quarters, the abundance of easy chairs and a superb cooling system those who do attend are assured of a most pleasurable evening.

There will be but one admission charged for all. This will entitle each visitor to ice cream, refreshments and dancing. In this connection there is to be competition among the wives and sweethearts of members of the lodge in the baking of cakes. These cakes must be in the hands of the committee early Thursday evening, incidentally the committee would like to be informed as to just who will bring cakes in order that they may be assured of a sufficient supply for the occasion.

Phoenix Lodge of Moose has a reputation for most enjoyable social affairs and this mid-summer ice cream and dance festival promises to be no exception.

KIND WOMEN START FUND

To Save Dogs, Pets of Little Children from the Dog Catcher. How the Killing of Dogs May be Obviated

The following letter was received at this office yesterday morning:

"To the Editor of The Republican.
"Dear Sir: Following up the suggestion given in this morning's paper, please find enclosed $4 to save the pets of some really poor, worthy children, as you will understand better than we do what best to do with it or whom to give it to. Wishing heartily that some arrangement might be perfected for the same purpose.
"We are constant readers of your paper."

This money is intended for the purchase of tags for dogs belonging to poor children that their pets may not be in peril. The Republican wishes that it knew the names of the kind ladies who contributed this sum, but it does not.

While the writer says that the gift was inspired by an article in The Republican yesterday morning, the article itself was inspired by a letter by a "Workingwoman" to the city manager complaining of her poverty that prevented her paying for a tag for her little dog, the playmate of her children whom she had to leave at home every day while she went out to earn their bread.

Unfortunately, "Workingwoman" did not include her name or address in the letter to the city manager, but if she will make it known to him or to this office, money for the tags will be forthcoming.

J. W. Canning, whose activities have saved the lives of a great many dogs for which good homes have been provided said yesterday that he could arrange matters so that it would be unnecessary to kill dogs. The demand for them is so great that he had found homes for 155 within a very short time and he will undertake to find a home for every mad dog brought to his notice. The owner will be a man who will buy a tag for it so that the city will be profited. A live dog in the hands of an appreciative man or boy is worth more to the treasury of Phoenix than a whole raft of dead dogs.

Following the refusal of the Arizona Eastern to carry the baggage and camp equipment of the National Guard to the annual encampment unless it was shipped as freight, announcement was made yesterday by H. C. Hallmark, general freight and passenger agent of that road that the baggage would be carried on the special train leaving here next Sunday morning. The question as to whether the equipment can properly be carried as baggage will be determined and adjusted afterward.

The railroad company refused to haul the baggage, including tents, guns, bedding and other equipment as baggage, claiming that the checking privilege is for the transportation of personal property, and that the guard equipment was not the property of the men, but of the government. The only way such material could be handled, it was announced, was by freight.

Protest against this ruling was filed with the corporation commission by Adjutant General Harris who pointed out that while the property was not the personal belongings of the men, neither were the tickets purchased or paid for by the guardsmen. The government was paying their expenses, and was entitled to check its property on the tickets.

No objection to the checking of the guard equipment as baggage has ever been raised by the Santa Fe or El Paso and Southwestern railroads. The objection to this mode of transporting, it is stated has been made only by the Arizona Eastern and incidentally by the Southern Pacific.

TO WITHDRAW SHIPS

(Associated Press Dispatch)
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—Definite announcement that the Trans-Pacific service of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company will cease on November 2, thus withdrawing from the foreign trade the largest American fleet engaged in such commerce, was made official. It is stated the seamen's law would force operation at a loss.
